MR. DALTON COMES TO THE FRONT.

Tells His Friends and Neighbors of His Experience.

Every Lancaster resident should read what Mr. Dalton says, and follow his example. He has used Doan's Kidney Pills and speaks from experience. Is there any need to experiment with imitations or untried kidney medicines?

J. W. Dalton, farmer, Crab Orchard St., Lancaster, says: "Some time ago I had trouble with my kidneys. My back ached and was sore and lame and my kidneys were irregular in action. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at R. E. McRoberts' Sons Drug Store and used them. The backache left me and my kidneys were soon put in good order. I have had no return of the trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Dalton had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.

PANSY BLOSSOM

By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

"It is the pansy blossom," the young Japanese said, "and if you were of Japan, that should be your name—Pansy Blossom; because of the purple of your eyes, and the thoughts you bring."

Vickie smiled. She sat looking down at the water color sketch which the Japanese had placed in her hand.

"You are poetical, Kato," she replied, "and an artist, too. I like your pansy blossom, and I like your pretty way of naming women." Vickie sighed. "Everything here is beautiful enough to inspire one to poetry and art. Kato, can you imagine a lovelier spot? The sea sparkling before us in the sunshine, and the tall background of trees, before the hotel. One ought to be happy here, Kato." The girl moved her pretty hand impatiently.

"One would be if—" she laughed sturdily, "if some one were not always taking the joy out of life."

"Some one?" questioned the Japanese softly, raising his brows. Vickie drew nearer.

"I just have to tell you," she said. "It will be such a comfort to confide, and you are a sphinx. Kato; wild horses couldn't draw a confidence from you."

The youth bowed gravely. "At your service, Pansy Blossom," he assured her.

"Mother's apparent purpose in bringing me here," said Vickie, "was that I might enjoy the pleasure with her of a seaside resort. The real underlying reason was to break off an attachment which she had discovered between myself and Bruce Masters. Mother has other plans in view for her debutante daughter, than being the wife of lowest Bruce Masters. Bruce is not rich, you see, Kato, also he has still his profession to fight for. But he loves me, and I—"

The girl gazed out to sea, a tender smile curving her lips.

"I love Bruce," she ended softly. "And this Bruce whom you love is worthy?" Kato asked. She nodded vehemently.

"There's a wealthy banker in the office," she explained, "upon whom mother has set her ambitious heart. She can't make me marry him, Kato, but she can prevent me from seeing Bruce. I'm sure I don't know how it's all going to end. You must see, how slight I'm growing, Kato—no appetite at all. And if it were not for your wonderful musical performance at the theater each afternoon, I really don't know what I should do. You help me to pass the time, too. You're very interesting, Kato. I'm so glad you are 'the fashion' at the hotel."

"You are sorrowful, disappointed," Kato went on; "may be some way I can help you."

"Dear Kato," Vickie said. "Please try."

He arose, assisting the girl with a courtly air.

Vickie slipped her hand through his proffered arm and the two went strolling together down the beach.

"My dear Mrs. Varden," an imposing looking woman upon the hotel veranda said, to a woman in an adjoining rocking chair, "are you not afraid to allow your charming daughter so much of that fascinating Jap's society? Young people have romantic ideas, you know, and the accomplished musician may be dangerously entertaining."

Vickie Varden's mother turned, suddenly startled; then she laughed. "My daughter is not so easily fascinated," she replied. But the uncomfortable suggestion rankled.

That evening the mother felt called upon to drop a warning remark.

"Don't you think that you are being too good to that Japanese?" she drawled. "Surely there is nothing about him to so constantly amuse."

To her surprise the girl whirled about in indignation.

"Kato doesn't amuse me," she retorted. "I like him; he is my friend."

Speechless, the mother gazed after her daughter's wrathful departure. Then in anger, she followed swiftly as the girl passed out upon the hotel veranda and deliberately down to a dusky secluded corner. The mother's newly awakened fears were realized. The Japanese was already there, evidently awaiting her daughter's appearance. Mrs. Varden drew back against a jut of the wall, and shamelessly listened.

"Pansy Blossom," greeted the youth, "the hours are long when you are not here."

"I have been thinking," he continued, "that an elopement must be the solution. True love should not be denied. It grieves me to see you suffer, and I—"

Mrs. Varden's patience could stand no more.

"You dare," she burst out, "to plan an elopement with my daughter! You—"

But Vickie interposed.

"Mother," she reproached, "you would not let me marry Bruce."

"Rather a thousand times Bruce," cried Mrs. Varden, "than this presumptuous Oriental."

"Then," agreed Vickie with alacrity, "I will send for Bruce."

In the darkness Kato's hand reached out to touch the girl's.

"Mother needn't know that it was an elopement with Bruce which I suggested," he said. "Me, Pansy Blossom, I'm your friend."

OLD AGE STARTS

WITH YOUR KIDNEY

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haastem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haastem Oil is included in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 1 drop each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life, strength increase as you continue treatment. When completely restored taking a capsule or two daily. GOLD MEDAL Haastem Oil will keep you in health and prevent a return of the disease. Do not wait until old age or disease has settled down for good. Go to drugstore and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haastem Oil Capsules. Refunded if they do not help you. Also, (10) remember to ask for original imported GOLD MEDAL in sealed packages.

The Vapor Treatment FOR Influenza, Croup and Pneumonia

Mothers who know the anguish of waiting helplessly through age-long hours for the physician who may not arrive in time will hardly fail to keep on hand a bottle of this effective croup remedy. Vapomenth is a certain preventive and specific for colds, croup, influenza, grippe, pneumonia and other respiratory ailments.

BRAME'S VAPOMENTHA SALVE
WILL NOT STAIN THE CLOTHES

It is applied externally to the chest, throat and nostrils and is quickly absorbed through the pores of the skin. Its healing vapors rise and are inhaled directly to the infected membranes. A double-action remedy, it is doubly certain to produce satisfactory results. It has this characteristic that distinguishes it from other salves, it will not stain the clothes. Use a bottle of Vapomenth TODAY. It is an invaluable protection for an insignificant price.

Some Superstitions.

The breaking of a looking glass is, with some people, the occasion of a gloomy foreboding, and the unlucky person who does it is supposed to be doomed to seven years of bad luck. Feathers were formerly considered as bearers of sickness, yet fashion has introduced them into house decorations.

Alcohol is now made from "black strap," a very cheap and common grade of molasses which comes from the West Indies.

A vast amount of work now remains to be done which the intervention of war has necessarily delayed and economic conditions have made it difficult to make up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war, and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country.
WALKER D. HUNTER,

Work more—
Produce more—
Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

FINE FEATHERS

By ANNETTE GREEN.

(Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Lakeland, the beautiful summer home of Mrs. Carter, gleamed like an enchanted palace in the moonlight while from the brightly lighted ballroom came the strains of music, mingled with the sound of dancing and youthful laughter. Everybody seemed happy, except one. From the shadows of the upper balcony overlooking the ballroom a young man watched the gay scene below with a frown. And as he caught sight from time to time of a certain fairy-like figure among the dancers, a look of almost bitter pain swept over his fine features.

"Why, Phil, my dear boy!" exclaimed the hostess, spying the watching figure in the shadow as she strolled by with another matron. "Aren't you dancing?" He answered haltingly that he had a headache; didn't feel up to it tonight. "I'm afraid you young people stayed out on the lake in the sun too long today," replied Mrs. Carter. "What a pity! And this is Phoebe's last night here, too."

Phoebe's last night! Phil knew that, only too well! And again searching her out among the dancing throng, he followed the lovely girl in slinky chiffons with longing eyes. Muttering an excuse to Mrs. Carter about getting some fresh air, he turned away and left the balcony, followed by his hostess's voice bidding him come back later.

Avoiding the gay groups on the veranda Phil made his way through the sherry, and dropping down on a bench by the shining lake, gave himself up to his bitter thoughts. With the strains from the ballroom ringing faintly in his ears, he closed his eyes to shut out the bright moonlight and went over in his mind bit by bit his acquaintance with Phoebe, Mrs. Carter's niece, from the day in June when she arrived, a stranger to them all, up to tonight, when she had come to mean everything to him. He had thought her quite the nicest girl he ever met that first day, when, arriving at noon she found the rest of the house party gone for a tramp and a picnic, and he, her aunt's nearest neighbor, had taken her out in his canoe on the lake for the afternoon. He taught her how to paddle the canoe and the memory of her in her simple blue gingham dress with her golden hair blowing about her laughing face, came back to him tonight so clearly that he groaned and buried his face in his hands. For he had never seen her in any simple gingham gown again.

His morning dresses and sport suits, correct yachting costumes, lace embroidered things for afternoon and beautiful evening gowns had followed each other in varying succession, until Phil gave up all hope of ever daring to ask her to share his love and fortunes. Even to his uninitiated masculine mind Phoebe's clothes spelled much money. He had an idea that his month's salary would not have paid for the silvery gown she was wearing that evening (and he was quite right).

Well, it was madness to dream of asking such a girl to marry a young architect just starting out in business. That was all he could do—dream. With a sigh he got up from the bench and started back to the house. He would have one more glimpse of Phoebe's beloved face before she went out of his life forever, although the sight of her, so dear, yet for him so unattainable, would be only one more pang. He found a place at one of the ballroom windows where he could look in unobserved. He was searching among the dancing couples for Phoebe, who seemed to have disappeared, when he heard her name repeated just inside the window. Someone was talking about her to a group of guests, and before he could move away Phil was rooted to the spot in stunned surprise. "Phoebe?" the gossiping voice went on. "Oh, my, no! All those stunning clothes she's been wearing Mrs. Carter gave her, all of them." "She looks charming tonight; where is she now?" asked a second voice. "I saw her going toward the garden all alone a little while ago," the other replied; "she'd taken off her ball gown and had on that old gingham thing she wore when she first came."

Phil turned away from the window just as Mrs. Carter laid a hand on his arm, asking if his head still ached. Strangely enough, his headache was gone, and replying to her kind inquiries with ill-concealed haste, he vaulted over the veranda railing and dashed around the house toward the garden.

Pigs Foretell Winds.

The killing of a pig at sea is always an occasion of great moment, not only for the reason that fresh meat is to be enjoyed—a great luxury on sailing vessels, after perhaps months of salt provisions—but also because what is termed a "pig breeze," or favorable wind, may be regarded as a certainty. Pigs when kept on sailing ships are allowed very frequently to leave their pens, and their movements on such occasions, which are held to foretell the wind to be expected, are watched with the keenest interest. Should a pig evince any signs of laziness, lying down or wandering aimlessly about the decks, then this is a sign that calm weather will come, with little or no wind in prospect. Should, however, the pig show a frisky mood, with much squealing, then it is a sure sign of "big winds," a very necessary factor in the navigation of a sailing ship.

Their Medicine Chest For 20 Years

It is characteristic of folks after they pass the allotted "three score years and ten," to look back over the days that are gone and thoughtfully live them over.

I find myself, at seventy-one, frequently drifting back a quarter of a century, when I was myself in the little drug store I owned at Bolivar, Mo., making and selling a vegetable compound to my friends and customers—what was then known only as Dr. Lewis' Medicine for Stomach, Liver and Bowel Complaints.

For many years while I was perfecting my formula I studied and investigated the theories and cathartics on the market and became convinced that their main fault was not that they did not act on the bowels, but that their action was too violent and drastic, and upset the system of the user; which was due to the fact that they were not thorough enough in their action, soon simply acting on the upper or small intestines, while others would act only on the lower or large intestines, and that they almost invariably produced a habit requiring augmented doses.

I believed that a preparation to produce the best effect must first tone the liver, then act on the stomach and entire alimentary system. If this was accomplished, the medicine would produce a mild, but thorough stimulation of the waste without the usual sickening sensations, and make the user feel better at once.

After experimenting with hundreds of different compounds, I at last perfected the formula that is now known as Nature's Remedy, which I truly believe goes further and does more than any laxative on the market today. The thousands of letters from users have convinced me I was right, and that the name of Nature's Remedy as a family medicine, even though he may have used it for twenty-five years, never has to increase the dose.

My knowledge of medicine and the results of its use in my own family and among my friends, before I ever offered it for sale, caused me to have great faith in Nature's Remedy from the very first.

And now as I find myself nearing the age when I must bow to the inevitable and go to another life, my greatest pleasure is to tell each day and read the letters that each mail brings from people as old or older than I, who tell of having used Nature's Remedy for ten, fifteen and twenty years, and how they and their children and grandchildren have been benefited by it.

It is a consoling thought, my friends, far a man at my age to feel that aside from his own success, one has done something for his fellow man. My greatest satisfaction, my greatest happiness today, is the knowledge that tonight more than one million people will take a Nature's Remedy (NH Tablet) and will be better, healthier, happier people for it. I hope you will be one of them.

Is it too time worn to say again that another year lies before us with all its possibilities for good or ill, for success or failure? But as we cross the border of 1920 how many of us are giving even a passing thought to the character of the course we are to pursue in the next twelve months?

If we would enrich the world by our individual presence, we must have a definite plan in view, and that plan must be adhered to in the face of all obstacles. Accumulation of wealth is not the noblest aim of life nor the chief aim of man. With prosperity we must have honor and integrity, peace and contentment. All these are within the reach of every man and every woman who has the moral courage to begin the new year with a determination to do that which is right and just, regardless of what friend or foe may say.

As a paper we have tried conscientiously to serve the best interests of our County, our State and our Country. In doing so we believe we have best served the people. And for the New Year we will strive to carry out a pledge for "Pure religion, untarnished Democracy, and Good Government", and in the words of Carlyle, to "Do the day's work."

PROFITTEERING

IN PUBLICITY.

Oh, joy! But it's a scream! Twisting the tails of the profiteers in our great cities is thefad of the hour.

It's a great sport, because the twisters soar in the spotlight of publicity and the profiteers are never hurt.

First our public officials of the country announced with a mighty bray a campaign of extermination against the profiteers. Prosecutions by the wholesale were planned. Jails were to be filled to overflowing.

Congress stood upon its hind legs and bellowed lustily.

The press of the great cities howled with glee. It played the story to the limit, and our noble prosecutors reveled in the spotlight of publicity.

Everybody's name was in big type, and all were deliriously happy.

But that was all. Nothing happened. Of course not, for everybody is profiteering, and everybody has a vote at the next election.

How could congress do more than bellow with the ends of its term in sight? How could the poor prosecutors be expected to jail the very men who elected them to office? Never! Quite out of the question!

Therefore, exit the male exterminator in a halo of camouflage, diplomatically hoisting woman into the seat of glory from whence he fled in dismay.

But the women were brave. What mere man could not do they would accomplish.

They planted both feet in the arena and looked around for the reporters. No publicity, no extermination. They get the pub.

But wait! Soon they will discover that the great houses that sold them their sealskins, and their gowns, and all of their other finery, are profiteers of profiteers.

And everywhere they turn they will find that their neighbors, and their relatives, and their friends, and even their dear and loving husbands are gouging others to the limit of gougibility.

Will they send their own husbands to prison? Impossible!

Such a thing would be terrible, shocking, and so embarrassing.

But what can the dear things do?

Ah! Here it is. Advise everybody to eat less, and wear less—and then if everybody eats more and wears more it's everybody's own fault, and no one in particular is to blame.

Great scheme! It's quite harmless, and can be worked as long as the spotlight continues to shine and the public is willing to be gulled.

Profiteering? Sure! Everybody's doing it.

And the jails are still empty. Barnum was right.

WANTED—A ROPE.

When the 249 Reds were deported a few days ago they lived up to their reputations as they were taken aboard ship under guard.

They raved and cursed the government, and vehemently declared that they would return and wreak vengeance upon every agency that stands for law and order and decency.

And they will return—be-sure of that.

The Mexican border alone offers every opportunity for again invading this country, even if they were successfully barred from our regular ports. It may even be considered a settled fact that Carranza will afford them every facility to this end.

There are only two effective means of curbing a Red—iron bars or a coffin.

Gentleness and humanity only fan the fires of hatred.

FOUR BILLION DOLLARS.

There comes a time, we fear, when good business is not so good as it may seem.

During the past fiscal year we sent to other countries four billion dollars worth of goods more than we received from abroad.

That is our balance of trade, and it is called good business. But is it?

While we were sending these enormous stocks abroad a scarcity was being created in this country.

So long as an article is plentiful it can generally be purchased for a reasonable amount, but the moment it begins to become scarce, UP GOES THE PRICE.

That is what happened.

Not enough foodstuffs and other articles were left in our own country for our own use, and we are paying for it today with the wildest and most assinine era of profiteering the world has ever known.

And the exporting "interests" have the monumental nerve to tell us it is caused by underproduction.

WOMEN HAVE HEARTS.

Four women were recently excused from a jury because they declared that under no circumstances would they vote to inflict capital punishment.

Some day the influence of our women may be the means of abolishing capital punishment entirely.

If a man is sent to prison for life, and is later proven to be an innocent victim of circumstances, as is often the case, he can at least be liberated for the remainder of his days. But if he is hung it would be rather difficult to bring him back to life again.

Women have hearts.

Be good to the new year, and it may be the same to you.

Miller-Reynolds.

On December 24th, 1919, Miss Ellen Sophia Miller and Mr. Thomas N. Reynolds both of this county were united in marriage at Lancaster by Rev. C. H. Strother.

Miss Miller is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Miller. She has many friends and is loved by every one who knows her. Mr. Reynolds is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Reynolds and is a young and progressive farmer of splendid moral character.

Immediately after the ceremony they took the noon train for Cincinnati and Hamilton Ohio, where they will visit relatives and friends for a few days, after which they will be at home to their friends here. We wish them a long life of happiness together.

Ray-Smith.

The marriage of Mr. Buford H. Smith to Miss Nellie Gladys Ray took place in Richmond last Wednesday, December 24th, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Taylor of that city. This marriage is the result of a happy courtship of many months.

Miss Ray is the beautiful and very charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ray, and is exceedingly popular and will make the deserving young man a helpmeet in everything that the word implies. Mr. Smith is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and is one of Garrard county's progressive farmers.

The Record joins the many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Sanders-Sanders.

A wedding that will be of much interest to many friends is that of Miss Hattie Ray Sanders of Madison County, and Mr. William Clyde Sanders of the county, which occurred in Lexington Saturday afternoon. Rev. Mark Collis of the Broadway Christian church was the officiating minister. The bride is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Malinda Sanders of Madison county, and was beautiful in a traveling suit of blue tricotine with hat to match. The groom is a son of Mrs. Mary A. Sanders and is one of our most prominent and prosperous young farmers.

After several days stay at the Phoenix, they will return to Lancaster, where they will make their home.

The Record joins the numerous friends of this popular young couple in wishing them much success and a long life of happiness.

Scott-Ralston.

On Saturday afternoon, Miss Eva Garrison Scott and Mr. Robert Frank Ralston were united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony, at Stanford, by the Rev. Mr. Brazelton, of the Christian Church of that city.

They were accompanied to Stanford by Mrs. Taulbee Cornett, sister of the groom, Miss Nancy Scott, sister of the bride, and Mr. Sylvester Price.

After the impressive ceremony at the home of the officiating minister, the happy couple left for a short wedding trip to Louisville, Cincinnati and other points north.

The bride is one of the beautiful and accomplished daughters of Mr. Jas. A. Scott of this county, and Mr. Ralston is to be congratulated upon his success in winning the hand of this lovely maiden. She was handsomely dressed in a brown velvet traveling suit, with picture hat, gloves, furs, and shoes to match, and never looked more beautiful than on her wedding day.

The groom is a prominent young farmer of upper Garrard who was in service overseas for six months and is very deserving of the lovely prize he has won.

They have a host of friends and relatives who wish for them a life of much happiness and prosperity together.

WE WISH YOU

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Davis were Lexington visitors Monday.

Mr. C. W. Coulter of Rossmoyne Ohio, is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Nan Mullins spent several days in Nicholasville last week.

Miss Jane Bowling spent several days in Flemingsburg with friends.

Mrs. E. H. Ballard spent several days with her sister, Mrs. Woolfolk in Lexington.

Mr. Goebel Ballard of Lancaster spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Florence Ballard.

Miss Margaret Askins of Buena Vista, was the guest last week of Mrs. C. M. Deane.

Miss Martha Curtis who was operated on for appendicitis on Friday is getting along nicely.

Messrs W. K. Davis, C. M. Dean and Sam Halcomb were in Lexington Saturday on business.

Miss Minnie Mae Robinson of Lancaster was the week end guest of Miss Stella Mae Grow.

Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Montgomery of Paint Lick, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Bryant Sunday.

Miss Margaret Croushorn of Berea College spent the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Francis Croushorn.

Miss Jane Bowling of K. C. W. is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bowling.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Williams entertained a number of their friends at a 6 o'clock dinner Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dickerson and family of Lancaster were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Kennedy.

Misses Annie and Mae Powell and Annie Belle Ballard of Lancaster, spent several days with Mrs. Florence Ballard.

Mesdames B. H. Halcomb, Nan Mullins and Miss Mary Belle Halcomb were in Danville shopping on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Davis and Master Newton Davis were the guests of Mrs. Belle Davis of Sulphur Well on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bryant and family of Louisville were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hogan Ballard Thursday.

Mrs. B. C. Rose entertained a number of relatives Thursday in honor of her little son, James Lear, it being his fourth birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Curtis and little son, were the guests Wednesday of their grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ray at Buckeye.

Mr. C. W. Farley of Lexington, Mr. Sam Farley and Miss Mary Ellen Farley of Nicholasville were here Wednesday for the sale of their home.

Messrs W. J. Broadbuss, B. H. Halcomb, Louis Broadbuss and Misses Lettie Broadbuss and Mary Belle Halcomb were Richmond visitors Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Swope and sons have gone to make their future home in Aberdeen Mississippi. We regret to lose them from our midst, but wish them every success in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Marsee Jr., entertained a number of their friends Saturday evening those present being: Mr. and Mrs. Forest Curtis, Misses Martha and Margaret Curtis, and Messrs Harmon and Hubert Raney of LaGrange.

Mr. Edd Pierce and Miss Gracie Hurt surprised their many friends Wednesday by motoring to Nicholasville and engaging in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. Cronley Hurt and is a very attractive young lady. The groom, is the oldest son of Mr. Joe Pierce and is to be congratulated on winning such a lovely bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Miley Beasley, Mr. and Mrs. William Kinder and baby, Misses Dorothy and Willie May Beasley were Sunday guests of their father, Mr. W. H. Beasley of McCleary.

It is with regret that we have to lose, on January 1st, the families of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Ward and Mrs. John Broadbuss. Both are good true neighbors and citizens, and we recommend them to the community in the vicinity of their new homes, as "the best ever" in every way, but realize that our loss is their gain.

Mesdames Milton Ward and C. R. Henry entertained at an elegant dining on Sunday, Dec. 28th in honor of Mr. Ward's birthday. A delicious menu, and every delicacy of the season was served, including Turkey and Country Ham. All the children and the grand-children (in Ky) being present, making it a day that will long linger in their memory. We wish for Mr. Ward many more happy birthdays.

Chinese Typewriter.

One of the most remarkable typewriters in the world was the machine especially designed and built for Li Hung Chang, the Chinese statesman. It had 1,800 keys. No dies were available, so the engraving of the type had to be done by hand.

Were Hearty Eaters.

Many great musical composers had exceptionally large appetites. When Handel dined alone at a restaurant he usually took the precaution of ordering a meal for three. Haydn, yet more voracious, was known to consume a meal that would have satisfied five ordinary appetites.

Buck Hares in Combat.

An Australian correspondent describes "a dinkum stand-up fight" between two buck hares. "They prop upright on their hind legs and box with their front paws, sparring, ducking, uppercutting in pugilistic fashion, fur flying in all directions. When one pugilist goes winded or passed out he falls on his back and skates his tail."

Etiquette of Walking.

When in the street, especially in daytime, a lady is not supposed to take a gentleman's arm, unless she is infirm or elderly, though she may properly do so at night. When walking with two ladies a gentleman may walk on the outside, or the inside, or, rather, the side from which he can best guard his companion or companions from obstacles or danger. It is not good form to take a lady's arm, unless to assist her in some way.

An Australian inventor has brought out a plow for use on newly cleared land which rolls over stumps and other obstructions.

8,000 Different Fish in the Nile.

It is believed the Nile contains a greater variety of fish than any other river in the world. An expedition sent by the British museum brought back 8,000 specimens.

Cultivating Sugar Cane.

The methods of cultivating sugar cane in Trinidad are beginning to undergo radical changes through the introduction of American plows and cultivators, hay rakes, mowing machines, and crushers and pulverizers of feed for mules and cattle.

Baker's Dozen.

In most countries 13 is always spoken of as "the baker's dozen," but in Italy it is called "a cobbler's dozen." There is a tradition in that land that formerly there was a law compelling cobblers to put 12 nails around the edge of a boot heel, and that when nails were cheap a thirteenth nail was driven in the center for luck.

Home.

Home cannot be given us. We may be given a house, a place to eat and sleep. This is not a home. A home is a place of love and rest and peace. Love and rest and peace must be desired, must be earned. Nobody can hand them to you as so many packages. They are matters of reciprocity. If you have none to give, there will be but little for you to receive.—Weston Methodist.

Not Always Unlucky.

Friday has not been unlucky in history, if it is so considered by many. It was on Friday, August 3, 1492, that Columbus set sail on his voyage of discovery, and Friday, October 12, that he first sighted land; Friday, November 22, 1493, that he reached Hispaniola on his second voyage; Friday, June 13, 1494, that he reached the continent of America. It was on Friday, July 17, 1776, that the motion was made that the United colonies are and ought to be free and independent. Many more occurrences could be cited.

Mr. Lucien E. Clouse of Kings Mill, Ohio, is spending the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Mary Clouse.

Mrs. Amanda Clouse and daughter Ethel and Maudie Mae, spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Locker.

Mrs. Belle Simpson and daughter, Virginia, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vaughn of Lancaster, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Locker and little daughter, Kathryn spent Thursday and Friday with her mother, Mrs. Amanda Clouse.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sanders entertained the following guests Christmas day in honor of Mr. W. C. Sanders and bride, Misses Peachie Mae Sanders and Inez and Rose Ray. Messrs Thompson and Angle Sanders. A delightful dinner was served.

Mr. William Clyde Sanders and Miss Hattie Ray Sanders surprised their many friends by notoring to Lexington on Dec. 20th and uniting in the holy bonds of matrimony. We extend hearty congratulations to the happy couple and wish them a long and happy life.

Washington Monument.

From floor of shaft to apex, the Washington monument is 555 feet 5 1/4 inches high; the shaft itself is 560 feet 5 1/4 inches, the small pyramid which tops the shaft being 55 feet. The base is 55 feet 1 1/4 inches square. The walls are 15 feet thick at the base of the shaft and taper to 15 inches thick at the top.

Credit Out of Favor.

A detail of colored engineers who were working on the roads in the vicinity of Boise were growing at the long hours, the source mulls and the back pay. The sergeant, to comfort them, said: "But think of all the credit you get." "Yeah," came the answer, "But all we do get—credit. Nobody see no cash around here!"—American Legion Weekly.

To Acquire Greatness.

The best guarantee to greatness is an intense interest in a great program. Then it is that the fellow becomes so full of the job that he hasn't time to think about whether he's great or not. He sees the thing to be done and becomes so full of how to do it that he rises without knowing that he's becoming great in the eyes of the world. So the best thing is to be filled with your job and work it until it gets the fruits.

She Had a Different Ambition.

When William Wilberforce, the reformer, was a candidate for parliament his sister, an amiable and witty young lady, offered the compliment of moving down to each of the wives of those freemen who voted for her brother, on which she was saluted with a cry of "Miss Wilberforce forever!" when she pleasantly observed: "I thank you, gentlemen, but I cannot agree with you; for really I do not wish to be Miss Wilberforce forever!"—Boston Post.

FARM ANIMALS

VERMIN ON HOGS EXPENSIVE

One Cent Per Pound Is Added to Cost of Producing Pork by Presence of Insects.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Lice add a cent a pound to the cost of producing pork. This has been found in tests just completed at the experiment farm of the United States department of agriculture at Beltsville, Md. Twenty-four lousy hogs were secured and divided into two lots as nearly equal as to quality of animals as possible. The two lots were managed and fed the same way with the exception that one lot was treated to prevent lice. The animals were weighed at regular intervals and at the end of the fattening period it was found that the hogs infested with lice cost a cent a pound more to fatten than those which were free of the troublesome pest. The officials who had charge of this experiment give an interesting side light in connection with securing the lousy animals. They communicated with some of the department's field men, asking them to locate lousy hogs. It was some time before a reply was received to this surprising order. After the lousy hogs were purchased the owner learned why, and he immediately built a dipping vat and began to treat the animals to prevent lice.

COUNTY BREED DIRECTORIES

Catalogues Are Valuable in Identifying Owners and Effective in Promoting Sales.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Indefinite counties as to dominant breeds of live stock maintained, through the use of county breed directories, has won great favor in Iowa, where several years ago Linn county inaugurated this work. Such catalogues are valuable in identifying the owners of different breeds and are effective in promoting sales and in attracting prospective purchasers to the locality. They constitute a relatively permanent form of advertising, as ordinarily they are kept for future reference by those who receive them. The directories are best issued under the authority of a county live stock breeders' association or the local farm bureau. Ordinarily the expenses of these booklets are raised by the sale of advertising space to breeders. Practically any rural printing office can put out creditable productions of this class.

COMMUNITY BREEDING PLANS

Farmers in Certain Section Agree to Stick to One Breed and Use Purebred Sires.

Community breeding simply means that the farmers in a certain community agree to do two things: First, to breed but one breed of cattle, sheep or hogs.

Second: They agree to use none but purebred sires, those sires being owned either individually or collectively.

Everyone is absolutely free to do as he pleases just so long as he sticks to one class of stock and uses a purebred sire. These ideas can best be carried out if the farmers are organized in a body and get together at stated periods.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Mutton lambs are sure sale at good prices.

Use the best boar that you can secure.

Keep the fall pigs growing all through the winter.

Incubated diseases of sheep are hard to fight and overcome.

Weak lambs should be nursed and given extra care and a little extra milk.

Arrange to have the sows farrow early. The early pigs have the advantage of a better market.

DOGS SHOT IN CONNECTICUT

Wardens Destroy More Than 5,000 Canines, and Less Injury to Sheep Has Resulted.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Information from Connecticut shows that in the year ending September 30, more than 5,000 dogs were killed by dog wardens. Many were shot while interfering with sheep. Less injury to sheep has resulted than in any previous year.

A Dog-Proof Fenced Lot in Which Sheep May Be Placed at Night in Regions Where Animals Running at Large Are Ravaging Flocks.

vious year due, perhaps, to the so-called roaming dog law, which went into effect July 1.

The sheep industry in Connecticut has increased 33 1/3 per cent the past two years, and is still growing. The state legislature recently appropriated $10,000 to be used by the Connecticut Agricultural college in furthering the sheep industry.

BLANCHED FEED FOR HORSES

Select Ration That Seems to Meet Animal's Requirements—Individuals Differ.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As no feed or combination of feeds will meet conditions in all parts of the country, so no feed or mixture is suitable for all classes of horses. In choosing a ration for a horse, select the one that seems to meet his requirements, whether for growth, maintenance, work, broodling or fattening; estimate the amount of feed needed and try out the ration. It may appear after a trial that too little is being fed or that the ration may be changed somewhat in the interest of economy or efficiency. If a number of horses are kept, different rations may be tested on different animals and the best one selected for general use. Individual feeding gives the best results.

Feeding stuffs are broadly divided into two great classes, proteins and carbohydrates. The protein feeds are rich in nitrogenous compounds which are used in the animal body in building tissue, bone, hair, etc., and to provide energy; the carbohydrate feeds are starchy and are used in the animal body in the formation of fat and also for energy and heat.

To obtain the best results in feeding, the ration should be balanced properly to meet the needs of the animal in building tissue and supplying energy for work. The subject is discussed in detail in the United States department of agriculture's Farmers' Bulletin 1880, which will be sent free on request.

SHRUNKEN WHEAT GOOD FEED

Hogs in South Dakota Experiments Made Almost as Large Gains as With Good Wheat.

"With the price on hogs, shrunken wheat as a pig feed is worth about as much as the government's guarantee," says J. W. Wilson, professor of animal husbandry at South Dakota State college. Professor Wilson bases this statement upon the results of experiments conducted at the college some years ago in feeding 44-pound wheat in comparison with 57-pound wheat. Pigs receiving ground shrunken wheat made an average daily gain per head of two pounds, the good wheat producing only three-tenths of a pound more per day per head.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Keep the sows that prove to be the most profitable bearers.

Berkshires are a splendid type because they are a large and healthy pig.

Crude oil, applied on the back of the hogs with a brush will kill the lice.

Save the best gilts and breed them to a good boar. This is the best method of building up a good producing herd.

SIMPSON—MOBERLY.

On last Thursday morning, Miss Hattie Simpson and Mr. Edward Moberly were married in Lancaster by Rev. C. D. Strother, of the Baptist church. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ray accompanied them. The bride is the lovely and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simpson and never looked prettier than on her wedding day. Mr. Moberly is certainly to be congratulated on winning such a lovely girl as a life companion, whose winsomeness and beautiful character has endeared her to the community. The groom is the oldest son of Mrs. Leslie Hill and one of the most substantial farmers of this community. Their many friends are wishing them a most prosperous and happy life together and may every day be as happy as their wedding day.

According to experiments made at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, an average of about six quarts of alcohol can be obtained from each 100 pounds of seaweed.

Livingstone Memorial Tree.

One of the most curious memorials at Livingston Falls is the "name tree," near Victoria Falls, on the Zambezi. On the trunk Livingston cut his initials and the date 1855 on the day of his visit to the falls. In his book giving an account of this Livingston says: "This was the only instance in which I indulged in this piece of vanity."

WELCOME HOME

By LIZZIE M. PEABODY.

The old mill town seemed steeped in glorious sunshine the day it welcomed home its returned sons from the various branches of war service; bells rang, bands played and banners waved everywhere.

The beautifully staged drama, each representing its bit of history, each bearing loyal men and women who had in their appointed way fought hard to help win the war, were also generously applauded as they passed on their way.

After the parade came the banquet and speeches, and then dancing in the town hall. Certainly each returned man and boy should have felt his heart warm with appreciation of the hearty welcome given him, and Stephen Glenn, honorably discharged that very day, and who had arrived in town only a short time before the parade started, had honestly appreciated every effort made in his behalf as a returned soldier, and yet there was a disquieting look in his dark eyes as they roved around the hall, even as he danced with the prettiest girl and best dancer there.

He was looking for little Betty Plummer, and she had not yet appeared.

Seven laboriously written letters which should have passed the censor, he had sent to her.

Even while keeping step to the gay music he sorrowfully admitted to himself that as far as he was concerned he might as well have tied a stone to each letter and have dropped it into the deep sea; for he had not heard from her. Members of his company had received letters from the home town more or less regularly, but the sensitiveness which made him hide deep his hurt feelings, counseled silence, and he had asked no questions of them.

Although he was fond of dancing he suddenly decided early in the evening to go home; and as a result soon found himself walking rapidly in the direction of the old Plummer homestead, where Betty lived with her grandmother, and which was in the opposite direction from his boarding place.

Supposing that Betty had stayed away from the dance in order to avoid him, he argued to himself—supposing even that she preferred spending the evening at home with someone who had taken his place in her heart. There really wasn't any reason why he shouldn't stroll down by the old-fashioned gambrel-roofed white cottage where she lived, and he was soon standing close to the old furrowed stone which after many years of service as a part of the busy old grist mill had been chosen by Betty's grandfather as a suitable stepping stone to his front door. In the sitting room there was a cheery light and outside the old-fashioned flowers which grew about the sides of the old stone seemed to sleepily nod to him a welcome as they swayed toward him in the pale moonlight. Then the unexpected happened. From force of habit, and almost unconscious of the act, he raised the old brass knocker and knocked upon the door.

It was Betty who came, opened the door quickly, and then stood gazing at him.

Without being wholly successful she tried to veil the look of happiness which sprang into her blue eyes as she recognized him, and checking an exclamation, with hands hanging limply by her sides, she silently waited for him to speak.

"Don't stand there looking like that, Betty!" he burst out. "You must have known that I couldn't keep away; that I would have to learn from your own lips your reason for not answering my letters to you. Maybe they weren't interesting, maybe they weren't well written; but, oh, Betty! couldn't you have written just once?" Her expression changed and she tried to speak calmly, but her voice trembled and broke.

"You told me you would send your address, and I waited for you to write. At first I was very patient, and then I—oh, I didn't get any letters, Steven!" and for a moment she covered her eyes with both hands.

A feeling of perfect comprehension crept over him. Couldn't he understand well enough how hard it had been to bear the strain of waiting? Eagerly he caught at her hands and drew them swiftly away from her face. "Seven letters, Betty!" he cried. "Seven letters I wrote and sent and would have written 77 more, only I made up my mind at last that you did not care for my letters, or for me." In his voice was the ring of truth. Truth shone in his clear, young eyes, and all her doubts and fears vanished; but with gloomy foreboding he asked: "Can't you believe me?"

"Yes! Yes!" she replied hastily. "And no one else in all the wide world could be so welcome," she said softly.

As a few moments later she stood in the sitting room doorway, watching as he placed his hat on the hook in the little front entry, her smiling eyes and lips seemed to him to still be saying: "No one else in all the wide world could be so welcome."

Looking over her shoulder he noted the big old armchair, the red and green woolen carpet, so familiar to him. And even the little sitting room echoed her softly spoken words, and a boyish smile lit up his face as he remarked: "The right sort of welcome from the right girl. Can you beat it?"

THORNHILL WAGONS

SOME Thornhill owners constantly comment on the ease with which the wagon can be "backed up." This is due to the full circle iron. The ordinary circle is but a half circle (○). In making a sharp turn bolsters often run to the end of the track and become "derailed." Thornhills cannot do this because their track is a circle (○).

Others comment on the fact that in spite of tremendous overloads, Thornhill axles never break. The reason for this is plain. They use tough highland hickory—reinforced by a steel truss bar that extends the full length of the axle.

Still others comment that the gears never get out of line. This unusual feature is due to one of their workmen's inventions. He designed a malleable front hound plate—bolted to the gears at eight points. It's literally a jacket of iron that holds gears in line and insures light running for life.

From hilly sections come reports that the old trouble of broken king bolts is unknown among owners of Thornhill wagons. This because of a cup and saucer arrangement on the bolster that relieves the king bolt of strain.

To others the amazing feature is the long life of Thornhill beds—due to their location which gives them the pick of the yearly cutting of wood and due, in part, to the fact that they paint with pure lead and linseed oil despite its high cost.

Thousands of owners have found in Thornhills unusual strength where they are accustomed to weakness.

Let us show you this perfected wagon.

Agile Rhinoceros.
The rhinoceros, notwithstanding its unwieldy shape and short legs, is one of the most agile of beasts. A horseman can scarcely manage to overtake it, and in strength it is perhaps unsurpassed by any animal in the forest. In a single combat no animal but the elephant can stand up against it. To kill a rhinoceros a rifle ball must strike behind the shoulder.

Lion's Head in Fountains.
The original reason for the choice of a lion's head in public fountains where the water comes out of a lion's mouth was, remarks an exchange, that among the ancient Egyptians the rising of the waters of the Nile, which was the most important event of the year, meaning life and prosperity to the whole nation, always took place when the sun was in the constellation of Leo. The lion's head on fountains is a symbol of the life giving waters of the Nile.

MEETING WITH MADISON COURT

Enthusiastic Federal Road Meeting At Richmond Friday—Time Limit Set For March 15th.

A most enthusiastic meeting was held at Richmond Friday with the Madison County Fiscal Court in the interest of the Federal Highway, which is proposed from Hardyville, in Hart county, through the counties of Green, Taylor, Marion, Boyle, Garrard and Madison. A large delegation from the counties interested in the project was present, about a dozen from Boyle county being among the number.

County Judge Price called the meeting to order and State Road Commissioner, Joseph S. Boggs, of Richmond, was chosen to preside. Mr. Boggs explained the purpose of the meeting and said he hoped the road could be built. He said that this is the second time Madison county has been offered Federal Aid and if that county turned the proposition down this time the chance would probably never come again. He said all of the $5,000,000 appropriated by the Federal Government for road building in Kentucky would probably be used up within the next ninety days and those counties desiring to get the benefit of it must act quickly.

Each County Heard From.

Senator J. W. Harlan, of Danville, was called upon first to make a talk on the question and made a splendid speech. He said the counties along the proposed route had a rare opportunity to take advantage of the road fund offered by the Government and urged them to act promptly. Mr. Lewis, of Green county, was the next speaker. He told of the hard work the people of his county and the other counties in the lower part of the State had in raising their part of the road fund. He said he had traveled about a thousand miles in going over the territory covered by the proposed road and had spent much money in going from place to place. He called attention to the rich country the road would open up and said there are no good roads in Green and Taylor counties and if this road is built the people of that section would come this way to trade.

County Judge Stapp, of Garrard county, made a short talk on the subject and said that his county would build the road if the money could be raised. Mr. Robinson, of Garrard, made a rousing speech and said Garrard county could be depended upon to do her part if the route was decided upon by the other counties.

Esq. J. A. Cheech, of Danville, was called upon and after saying Boyle county would do her part spoke in the interest of co-operation and the advantages the road would be to this part of the State. He said the proposed road would traverse property valued at about one hundred million dollars.

Col. G. B. Swinebroad, of Lancaster, was the next speaker. He said this is the biggest and best proposition that has ever been put up to the people of this section and they should act quickly to take advantage of it. Mr. Durham, of Green county, told of the people of his section accomplishing what they believed at first to be the "impossible", but that they now had their part of the funds raised and if poor counties like Green and Taylor could raise their money, said Dr. Durham, counties like Madison, Garrard and Boyle ought to easily raise the necessary funds. Mr. Buchanan, of Taylor county, made a good talk on the question, telling of the many difficulties the people of his county experienced in raising their part of the money.

Madison Heard From.

Mr. Turley, cashier of the Madison State Bank, and a very enthusiastic road man, made a brief talk and said he had been a good roads booster all of his life and was in favor of the proposed Federal Highway. He said that he believed the Government would, in a short time, maintain all Federal roads and that the people would be very foolish not to accept Government Aid when it is offered.

Time Extended to March 15.

Commissioner Boggs was called upon to explain the proposition from the standpoint of the State Roads Department. He gave a brief history of the Federal and State road schemes and of the character of roads required. He spoke of the many times the people along this proposed route had asked for extension of time and announced that the State Road Department would make another extension of time, naming March 15th, 1920, as the last day for Boyle, Garrard and Madison counties to have their money ready. If the money is not raised by that time Mr. Boggs indicated that no further time would be given, as practically all of the Federal Aid money has been appropriated and would all be gone by that time. Madison County Judge Price said his court would meet at an early date and consider the question. No action was taken Friday by the Madison Fiscal Court, as a quorum was not present. Judge Price said he was in favor of the proposed road and believed Madison county would do her part.—Danville Messenger.

Baptist Church.

The Christmas service was a decided success, at least from the pastor's standpoint. Santa paid us a call and many nice and useful presents were bestowed upon the pastor, his wife and baby. We regretted that our entire S. S. enrollment was not present; but appreciated the presence of our many guests and invite them to become one of us.

The pastor begins his second year pastorate next Sunday, and will preach on the subject: "The New Path and The New Year". Begin the New Year right by coming to church Sunday and being there in time for Sunday School.

FENNER'S WAREHOUSE

WALNUT STREET.

DANVILLE, KY.

It gives us great pleasure to inform you that Tobacco in North Carolina and all Eastern Markets is much higher this season than ever before and we see no reason why the Kentucky Tobacco should not sell at High Prices. With the outlook of Prices being high, it is more necessary than ever that you be very careful in selecting a market to sell your Tobacco on where there is strong competition and assurance of getting the highest market price at all times. This we guarantee to do. We have one of the strongest corps of buyers in the state—all of the big companies are represented on our market, buying direct, thereby eliminating the middle man.

In order to care for the ever-growing market there has been erected in Danville a large and up-to-date Redrying Steam Plant, which will be worth a great deal to the farmers who sell their Tobacco on the Danville Market. These people will be big buyers on all grades of Tobacco, thereby creating new competition.

In order to avoid the congestion in the handling of Tobacco, which prevailed last season, we have built a big annex to our present Warehouse, which enables us to handle and sell your Tobacco to a much better advantage than ever before.

Our Mr. Ralph Pitt, who has had twenty-six years of actual experience in the operation of Tobacco Warehouses is in a class to himself and if you will bring your first load to us he will thoroughly demonstrate to you that it will be money in your pocket to sell your tobacco with us.

We wish to announce that Mr. Holland, better known as "Dock" will be our Auctioneer again this season, also J. Lee Murphy who has been connected with the Danville Tobacco Market for the past ten years will be associated with us this season and will be glad to serve his many friends at FENNER'S WAREHOUSE. Thanking you in advance and trusting you will visit our opening sale on DECEMBER 3rd,

We are Yours Very Truly,
